ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Author Gina Gray has hands-on experience of both running a business and working with teenagers. Having experienced 'both sides of the coin' she understands the fear that many young people face when entering the workplace, as well as the fear that business owners face in recruiting young people. Gina has been involved in the recruitment and selection of young people in previous employment and now runs her own consultancy. Based on past experience and regular networking with operators of other businesses, she has 'inside knowledge' of the desires and requirements of employers.
